LUNAR LIFT-OFF: Performers from the China Shenzhen Arts Troupe dance as they parade through central London in celebration of the Lunar New Year, The Year of the Dog, on Sunday. Lunar New Year is a two-week celebration that begins on the first day of the first month of the lunar calendar. It is considered a major holiday and is celebrated in Asian countries worldwide.

CONCENTRATION | Wet Nurse The lifeguards at an Ann Arbor, Mich., YMCA find bare breasts distracting. That's one of the reasons the center said they've banned breast-feeding at the pool. But nursing moms say that's not a good enough excuse, and held

a "nurse-in" protest in the center's lobby on Saturday. In addition to the problem of lifeguards not paying attention to swimmers, YMCA officials said, rules prohibit eating or drinking for anyone at the pool — including babies. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

Woodruff Wounded In Attack

ABC co-anchor, cameraman stable after bombing in Iraq

NEW YORK | ABC "World News Tonight" co-anchor Bob Woodruff and a cameraman were seriously injured Sunday when the Iraqi Army vehicle they were traveling in was attacked with an explosive device.

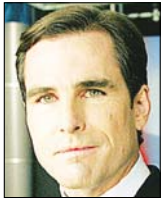

Both journalists suffered head injuries, and Woodruff also has broken bones. They were in stable condition following surgery at a U.S. military hospital in Iraq, and due to be evacuated to medical facilities in Germany, probably overnight, said ABC News President David Westin.

"We take this as good news, but the next few days will be critical," Westin said.

Woodruff and Doug Vogt, an award-winning cameraman, were embedded with the 4th Infantry Division and traveling in a convoy with U.S. and Iraqi troops near Taji, about 12 miles north of Baghdad.

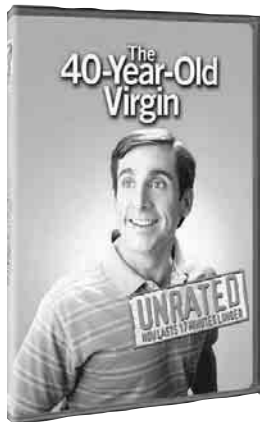

They were wearing body armor and helmets but were standing up in the hatch of the mechanized vehicle when the device exploded, exposing them to shrapnel. ABC said the men were in the Iraqi vehicle — considered less secure than U.S. military equipment — to get the perspective of the Iraqi military.

It was another dose of bad news for ABC News, still recovering from the death of Peter Jennings in August. Woodruff, 44, assumed Jennings' old job anchoring "World News Tonight" with Elizabeth Vargas earlier this month. DAVID BAUDER (AP)

EDUCATION

Today's Lesson Is Whatever The Heck You Want to Do

Showing the R-rated movie "The 40-Year-Old Virgin" during high school Spanish class last week resulted in suspension Tuesday for a Lexington, Ky., teacher, who resigned on Thursday. Fernando Del Pino said he decided to show the film after a student brought it to class and said it "was very funny." R-rated movies are not to be shown to anyone younger than 17 without a parent or guardian. The movie was rated R for pervasive, explicit and crude sexual content and drug use. (AP)

Sex Non-Scandal

Italian prime minister Silvio Berlusconi pledged Saturday not to have sex until after the April 9 election, the Il Giornale newspaper reported. After a television preacher gave his blessing to Berlusconi, he thanked him and promised "complete sexual abstinence" until the election. Berlusconi has caused controversy before with remarks women's organizations call sexist. For example, in June, he said he used "playboy tactics" to convince Finland's female president not to try to relocate the European Union's food agency out of Italy. (EXPRESS)

Audit Finds Waste in Iraq Contracts

Rebuilding authorities squandered millions, government study says

DUBAI, UNITED ARAB EMIRATES | Iraqi money gambled away in the Philippines. Thousands spent on a swimming pool that was never used. An elevator repaired so poorly that it crashed, killing people.

A U.S. government audit found American-led occupation authorities squandered tens of millions of dollars that were supposed to be used to rebuild Iraq through undocumented spending and outright fraud.

In some cases, auditors recommend criminal charges be filed against the perpetrators. In others, it asks the U.S. ambassador to Iraq to recoup the money.

Dryly written audit reports describe the Coalition Provisional Authority's offices in the south-central city of Hillah being awash in bricks of $100 bills taken from a central vault without documentation.

It describes one agent who kept almost $700,000 in cash in an unlocked footlocker and mentions a U.S. soldier who gambled away as much as $60,000 in reconstruction funds in the Philippines.

"Tens of millions of dollars in cash had gone in and out of the South-Central Region vault without any tracking of who deposited or withdrew the money, and why it was taken out," says a report by the Special Inspector General for Iraq Reconstruction, which is in the midst of a series of audits for the Pentagon and State Department.

The audits offer a window into the chaotic U.S.-led occupation of Iraq of 2003-04, when inexperienced American officials — including workers from President Bush's election campaign — organized a cash-intensive "hearts and minds" mission to rebuild Iraq's devastated economy.

But the corruption and incompetence documented in the reports reveal that much of the effort, however well-intentioned, was wasted.

In some cases, auditors could find no trace of cash, much of which came from Iraqi oil revenues overseen by the occupation authority.

GOP Pushes Bush On Abramoff Records

Senators want White House to disclose any contact with lobbyist

WASHINGTON | Republican lawmakers said Sunday that President Bush should publicly disclose White House contacts with Jack Abramoff, the lobbyist who has pleaded guilty to felony charges in an influence-peddling case.

Releasing the records would help eliminate suspicions that Abramoff, who helped raise more than $100,000 for Bush's re-election campaign, had undue influence on the White House, the Republicans said.

"I'm one who believes that more is better, in terms of disclosure and transparency," said Sen. John Thune, R-S.D.

Thune

The president has refused to reveal how much access Abramoff had to the White House, but has said he does not know Abramoff personally. Bush has said federal prosecutors can see the records of Abramoff's contacts, but he has not released them publicly.

Dems Unlikely to Stall Alito

Senate republicans to press for Tuesday vote if filibuster fails

WASHINGTON | To more effectively oppose Supreme Court nominees in the future, Democrats need to convince the public "their values are at stake" rather than use stalling tactics to try to thwart the president, said a senator who opposes Samuel Alito's confirmation.

Sen. Barack Obama, D-Ill., predicted on Sunday that an effort to try to block a final vote on Alito would fail on Monday. That would clear the way for Senate approval Tuesday of the federal appeals court judge picked to succeed the retiring Justice Sandra Day O'Connor.

Obama

Democrats fear he would shift the court rightward on abortion rights, affirmative action, the death penalty and other issues.

"We need to recognize, because Judge Alito will be confirmed, that, if we're going to oppose a nominee that we've got to persuade the American people that, in fact, their values are at stake," Obama said.

"There is an over-reliance on the part of Democrats for procedural maneuvers," he told ABC's "This Week."

Sens. John Kerry and Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts are urging fellow Democrats to support a filibuster, citing in part Alito's conservative record on abortion and deference to executive power.

Alito's supporters must produce 60 votes to cut off a filibuster; an Associated Press tally shows at least 62. HOPE YEN (AP)

Hurricanes Shape New Natural Order on Gulf

Storms and humans are disrupting life along coastal reefs

Last year's record hurricane season didn't just change life for humans. It changed nature, too.

Everywhere scientists look, they see disrupted patterns in and along the Gulf of Mexico. Coral reefs, flocks of sea birds, crab- and shrimp-filled meadows and dune-crowned beaches were wrapped up in — and altered by — the force of hurricanes Katrina, Rita and Dennis.

Hurricanes have been kneading the Gulf Coast like putty for eons, but up to now, the natural world has largely been able to rebound.

But scientists say the future could be different. The reason: the human factor.

The seas are rising, the planet is getting hotter and commercial and residential development is snowballing. Add those factors to a predicted increase in nasty hurricanes and what results is a recipe for serious natural degradation, some say.

The Gulf is in the midst of flux — heavily developed, heavily fished and buffeted by climate change and storms. It's becoming a perfect place for oceanographers and marine biologists to study, said Steven F. DiMarco, an ocean researcher at Texas A&M University.

"I think," he said, "people are looking to the Gulf of Mexico ever more as a microcosm of the world."

Notes Left Behind in Ark. Killings

Writings said to be from mom accused in deaths of her 3 kids

DE QUEEN, ARKANSAS | A mother accused of smothering her three young children left notes that officials say could help determine what led to the killings.

Paula Eleazar Mendez, 43, was in a county jail Sunday after being treated at a hospital for swallowing a toxic substance.

She had collapsed as officers arrived at her home Saturday morning in response to a telephone call from the children's father in New York. Inside the home, the officers found the bodies of the children, ages 6 to 8, lying side by side on a bed, police said.

"I do not believe there is any dispute as to who killed these three children, and therefore who will be charged," said prosecutor Tom Cooper.

The notes found in the house may help officials better understand what led to the killings.

The children were identified as 8-year-old Elvis and 6-year-old twins, Samanta and her brother Samuel.

Changing Face of AIDS Fight

Religious groups now get nearly one-quarter of funds to fight disease

WASHINGTON | President Bush's $15 billion effort to fight AIDS has handed out nearly one-quarter of its grants to religious groups, and officials are aggressively pursuing new church partners that often emphasize disease prevention through abstinence over condom use.

Award recipients include a Christian relief organization famous for its televised appeals to feed hungry children, a well-known Catholic charity and a group run by the son of evangelist Billy Graham.

The outreach to nontraditional AIDS players comes in the midst of a debate over how best to prevent the spread of HIV, the virus that causes AIDS.

Conservative Christian allies of the president are pressing the U.S. foreign aid agency to give fewer dollars to groups that distribute condoms or work with prostitutes. Secular organizations in Africa are raising concerns that new money to groups without AIDS experience may dilute the program's impact.

The abstinence emphasis, say some AIDS volunteers, has led to a confusing message and stigmatized condom use in parts of Africa.

But others say teaching safe sex practices to unmarried young people condones risky sexual activity.

"Why give an alternative and have them take a risk?" said Rev. Sam Lawrence Ruteikara of the Anglican Church of Uganda, a U.S. grant recipient. RITA BEAMISH (AP)

Greenspan Set to End Era at the Fed

Federal Reserve Board chief leaves a legacy of unprecedented growth

WASHINGTON | It will be business as usual when Alan Greenspan wraps up nearly two decades at the Federal Reserve on Tuesday.

He probably will raise interest rates one last time as he presides over the Federal Open Market Committee.

Greenspan will be leaving on top — rare in Washington — when he walks out the door of the Fed's imposing marble building.

Widely viewed as the most successful chairman in the Fed's 92-year history, Greenspan presided over an era of low inflation rates, low unemployment and the longest economic expansion in U.S. history — a decade of uninterrupted growth from March 1991 to March 2001.

Greenspan was a master in handling not only the economy but also the treacherous shoals of politics.

Greenspan's successor Ben Bernanke has pledged to follow the Greenspan playbook when it comes to running the economy.

That may turn out to be Greenspan's most lasting legacy.

Chaos Erupts Anew at Saddam Trial

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | A new judge cracked down Sunday in a chaotic session of Saddam Hussein's trial, ordering a co-defendant and a lawyer expelled from the courtroom. The entire defense team left in protest and Saddam was escorted out after a shouting match in which he yelled, "Down with America!"

Despite the turmoil, chief judge Raouf Rasheed Abdel-Rahman pushed ahead, replacing the defense lawyers with court-appointed attorneys and hearing three prosecution witnesses.

Saddam got angry after his half brother was thrown out of court for an outburst.

It was Abdel-Rahman's first session at the helm, replacing a jurist who stepped down amid criticism that he was not doing enough to stop Saddam and his half brother, co-defendant Barzan Ibrahim, from dominating the trial.

Abdel-Rahman wasted little time in distinguishing himself from his predecessor, telling the court at the start of the proceedings that anyone who broke the rules would be thrown out.

The session rapidly degenerated into chaos. Ibrahim called the court "the daughter of a whore" and refused to sit down. Abdel-Rahman ordered him removed, and Ibrahim scuffled with two guards before they dragged him

The Next Quake Challenge

With services better in camps, some survivors may resist going home

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN | Ever since South Asia's monster earthquake drove Shahnaz Bibi from her toppled mountain home nearly four months ago, she and 13 others have been sleeping in a tiny dust-caked tent with a dirt floor, no electricity and no heat.

But even if she had the money to rebuild, Bibi is in no rush to leave her sprawling refugee camp on the edge of Islamabad. At least her six children can go to school, the family has access to doctors and she doesn't have to walk one hour to the nearest market.

"This life is obviously better," Bibi said. "We'll stay here as long as we can."

A family of quake survivors sits in the sun outside their tent in Muzaffarabad.

With spring around the corner, sending home refugees of the Oct. 8 earthquake is a top priority for the U.N.-led relief effort, but aid workers warn that is easier said than done.

Exposed in camps for the first time to basic city conveniences, some of the 3.5 million people left homeless by the earthquake do not want to return to the rural hardships and poverty of Pakistan's Himalayan outback.

"Nobody is ready to leave my camp," says Malik Aulya Khan, an Interior Ministry official who runs Islamabad's H-11 tent city.

While many camps are squalid affairs with poor sanitation and paper-thin tents, those run by the U.N. and the Pakistani government can be eye-openers to some refugees, especially those who have never left their remote hamlets.

H-11 is scheduled to close in April, but Khan is not optimistic about the timeline. "We can't force them," Khan said. "We are facing a social problem." HANS GREIMEL (AP)

Israel Keeps Tough Line on Hamas

Olmert rejects contact with Palestinians if group doesn't disarm

JERUSALEM | Israel ruled out contacts with a Palestinian government led by Hamas unless the Islamic group renounces violence and threatened Sunday to "liquidate" militants if they resume attacking Israelis.

Acting Prime Minister Ehud Olmert said Israel will stop the monthly transfer of tens of millions of dollars in tax rebates and other funds to the Palestinian Authority if a Hamas government is installed.

With the latest comments, Israel showed no signs of backing down from the hard line it has taken since Hamas won a surprising landslide victory in Palestinian legislative elections last week.

tence of Israel and has killed hundreds of Israelis in suicide bomb attacks, is expected to lead the next Palestinian government, hurting the chances for a peace deal.

Olmert, addressing the weekly meeting of his Cabinet, said he has been in touch with leaders around the world in recent days and received support for the tough Israeli stance against Hamas.

"We clarified that without a clear abandonment of the path of terror, a recognition of Israel's right to exist in security and peace ... Israel won't have any contact with the Palestinians," Olmert said.

Hamas refuses to disarm or recognize Israel, though it has hinted that it could reach a long-term truce or other accommodation with the Jewish state.

During the Cabinet meeting, Defense Minister Shaul Mofaz said Hamas "is portraying policies of responsibility" and even has tried to restrain suicide attacks by the radical Islamic Jihad group.

But earlier, Mofaz said Israel is prepared to kill Hamas militants if the group resumes its attacks.

"Those who head terror organizations and continue to engage in terror against the state of Israel will be liquidated," told Channel 2 TV on Saturday night. JOSEF FEDERMAN (AP)

EU to Weigh Freezing Funds For Palestinians

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM | EU foreign ministers face tough decisions at their talks Monday over whether to freeze financial aid to a Hamas-led Palestinian government after the militant group swept Palestinian elections last week.

The European Union currently maintains a multimillion dollar aid program for the Palestinian Authority, and foreign ministers will have to decide whether to continue or suspend it if Hamas maintains its stance of calling for the destruction of Israel.

Monday's talks are to start just before a separate Monday meeting of the so-called Quartet of Mideast peace negotiators — the U.S., Russia, the United Nations and the EU. Officials in that meeting, to be held in London, will discuss whether peace efforts can be salvaged after Hamas' victory. (AP)

Terrorism Sirens Ready for Debut

Arlington, Alexandria part of pilot program for warning system

WASHINGTON | The haunting wail of sirens familiar to generations who lived through World War II and the Cold War will return to some of Washington's Virginia suburbs.

Arlington County and neighboring Alexandria will become the first communities in the country to experiment with sirens as terrorist attack alerts.

They are preparing to buy as many as 15 sirens to mount on telephone poles, buildings and elsewhere under in a federally funded pilot program that is being closely watched by other area governments.

"Everyone's looking at this to see if it will really reach significant numbers of people who are otherwise not reachable," said David Snyder of Falls Church, a member of the Washington region's emergency preparedness council.

Emergency managers stress that sirens are limited because they are designed to reach people outdoors. They are not ideal for suburban counties where people tend to spend more time indoors than out.

The program will test sirens in several neighborhoods, simulating the response to an explosion or weather catastrophe with a wail followed by a broadcast.

"We don't want to disturb people, but we want to make sure we get the best information we can," Robert P. Griffin Jr., Arlington's director of emergency management, told The Washington Post.

He estimated the project's cost at $350,000. (AP)

Mfume Taps Political Vets for Race

Democrat Kweisi Mfume has tapped two Washington political veterans to run his campaign for the U.S. Senate in Maryland.

Mfume, a former congressman and NAACP president, has struggled to raise money despite promising poll numbers. He's one of seven Democrats vying to replace retiring U.S. Sen. Paul Sarbanes.

The new managers are from consulting firm TeamBlue. Lindsay Lewis is the former DNC finance director, and Walter Ludwig was executive director of Project 90, which recruited House candidates in Republican-leaning districts.

According to the DNC Web site, Lewis was finance director for 2004 presidential hopeful Howard Dean's organization, Democracy for America. He also served on the finance team for Rep. Chris Van Hollen's 2002 campaign.

Another former Dean staffer, Joe Trippi, has been a consultant to the Mfume campaign. (AP)

Smithsonian to Unveil New Museum's Site

Possible locations for black history facility are on or near Mall

WASHINGTON | The Smithsonian Institution plans to announce Monday the location that's been chosen for the future national museum dedicated to black history and culture.

There's been much debate over the significance of the National Museum of African-American History and Culture's location. In a city full of museums, the four locations could determine the museum's overall status.

Some advocates contend the museum should be located on the National Mall because black Americans have been pushed out to less desirable places, but others want a site that's the best spot for an expansive museum building.

The four potential sites are the Arts and Industries Building next to the Smithsonian Castle; an empty lot on the Mall within view of the Washington Monument fronting Constitution Avenue between 14th and 15th streets NW; a federal building near the Tidal Basin at the approach to the 14th Street Bridge; and an area at 10th Street SW, where the L'Enfant Promenade ends near I-395 and the Southwest Waterfront. # Holiday Sought for Lunar New Year

Md. activists gather signatures to seek federal recognition

ELLICOTT CITY, MD. | Asians in Maryland and elsewhere are pushing for measures they hope will result in a federal holiday marking the Lunar New Year, allowing public schools to close and employees to stay home from work.

Activists from the Chinese, Korean and Vietnamese communities have collected more than 6,000 signatures in Maryland for a petition to recognize the Lunar

New Year.

While often referred to as the Chinese New Year, the holiday is observed by many Asian communities. The Vietnamese call it Tet, and Koreans call it Sol Nal.

Sunday marked the Lunar New Year in 2006, with celebrations by more than a billion Asians around the world. There are about 12 million Asians in the United States, and some say their struggle for recognition echoes those of other immigrant groups.

"The Italian Americans have Columbus Day, the Irish have St. Patrick's Day and African

A dragon dance entertains a mall crowd in Gaithersburg on Saturday.

Americans have Martin Luther King Jr. Day," Henry Lau, a co-founder of the Maryland Coalition for Recognition of the Asian Lunar New Year. "But the Asian American community has nothing. It's like we're not real Americans."

Many Asians say they feel unable to properly celebrate what they consider the most important holiday of the year because they are unable to miss work or take their children out of school.

"It makes me feel like it's possible to be a good Chinese and a good American," said Emily Yee-Mei Lee, 47, of Ellicott City. (AP)

A Brainy Beauty

New iMacs powered by Intel sport hot form, faster function

TECH TEST | Normally, a speedier computer that appears to be carbon copy of the one it replaced isn't worthy of much attention.

Not so, with the new iMac from Apple Computer Inc., the first with silicon brains from Intel Corp.

The new iMacs remain visually stunning, with the entire computer squeezed into the frame of a 17-inch or 20-inch flat-panel display. They still have built-in video cameras. They run most of the same software titles. And they cost the same ($1,299 or $1,699) as the last generation of iMacs, which ran IBM's PowerPC chips.

The Intel Corp. Core Duo processor inside, with two computing engines on each chip, does deliver a boost in performance with some programs, though Apple's claims of up to three times over the last generation is a stretch.

Apple, at least so far, seems to have done a very good job at making sure all old programs run seamlessly on the new Mac and that its new programs run on older Macs.

I borrowed a 20-inch Intel-based iMac from Apple and installed a variety of software on it, including some that I had bought for my five-year-old Power Mac.

A number of Apple's applications, including the latest versions of Mac OS X, iWork '06 productivity suite and the iLife '06 bundle of multimedia applications, already are available as "Universal" applications that work with both Intel and PowerPC Macs.

On the new Mac, the operating system was snappy. Programs like iPhoto, iTunes, Pages and Keynote felt like they benefited from the boost in computing horsepower.

In another test, I dug up copies of old programs and installed them on the new iMac. In this case, a technology called Rosetta takes over behind the scenes and translates the old code into something the Intel chip can understand.

As might be expected, there was a performance hit.

After installing the former Macromedia Inc.'s Studio MX 2004, I definitely noticed a slight lag when menus or windows were opened. It was most evident when moving complex pieces in the graphics program Freehand. That forced the image to redraw — very slowly — on the screen.

There are a handful of programs that won't work at all on the new Mac. They include some high-end professional applications from Apple, which promises to have new versions available within about a month, and also old programs that require Mac OS 9 and earlier.

Some might wonder if the new iMacs, because they have the same brain as computers that run Windows, can run that operating system. Right now, with Windows XP, the answer is no, though Apple says it won't prevent users from doing so. MATTHEW FORDAHL (AP)

Study: Web Doesn't Isolate

NEW YORK | Alone on the Internet? Hardly.

The cyberworld expands people's social networks and even encourages people to talk by phone or meet others in person, a new study finds.

The Pew Internet and American Life Project also finds that U.S. Internet users are more apt to get help on health care, financial and other decisions because they have a larger set of people to turn to.

Further rebuking early studies suggesting that the Internet promotes isolation, Pew found that it "was actually helping people maintain their communities," said Barry Wellman, a University of Toronto sociology professor and co-author of the Pew report.

The study found that e-mail is supplementing, not replacing, other means of contact. For example, people who e-mail most of their closest friends and relatives at least once a week are about 25 percent more likely to have weekly landline phone contact as well.

Meanwhile, Internet users tend to have a larger network of close and significant contacts — a median of 37 compared with 30 for nonusers — and they are more likely to receive help from someone within that social network. (AP)

No. 6 U-Md. women defeat Wake Forest, 79-70, in overtime

TERPS WOMEN | Crystal Langhorne scored a career-high 34 points, including 10 in overtime, and No. 6 Maryland beat Wake Forest 79-70 on Sunday.

Langhorne — whose previous career best was 33 points, set Feb. 28, 2005, against Northern Colorado — also had 14 rebounds to help the Terrapins (19-2, 6-1 Atlantic Coast Conference) win their fifth straight game.

Laura Harper added 13 points and Marissa Coleman had 11 for Maryland.

Despite a decided advantage inside — Maryland had a 52-34 rebounding edge — the Terrapins struggled to put away the pesky Demon Deacons (10-9, 2-5), who suffered their third straight loss.

Cotelia Bond-Young scored 29 points for Wake Forest, hitting six 3-pointers as the Demon Deacons went 9-of-23 from beyond the arc.

Deridre Naughton scored 15 points and Corinne Groves had 11 for Wake Forest, which suffered its second loss against a ranked team in the last three days. No. 3 North Carolina beat the Demon Deacons 91-57 on Friday night. (AP)

Capitals Bottle Up Lightning, 2-1

CAPITALS | Alexander Ovechkin made the Tampa Bay Lightning pay dearly for a defensive decision to double-team him.

Dainius Zubrus scored with 2:20 left in regulation and the Washington Capitals edged the Tampa Bay Lightning 2-1 Sunday for their third home win in four games against the defending Stanley Cup champions.

Ovechkin started the decisive push by skating down the left boards and drawing two defenders to him. Ovechkin slipped a rink-wide pass through traffic to Chris Clark on the right wing, and Clark tapped the puck to Zubrus, who scored after splitting two defenders in the slot.

The pass was a daring but beautiful assist, showing that the rookie sensation is keenly aware of where his teammates are and what the defense is trying to do to slow him down.

Doubling down on Ovechkin created extra ice that made possible an otherwise risky long pass.

"If two guys are going to go to [Ovechkin], right away as soon as he's into the zone, it means there's always going to be someone open. ...

CLOSE CALL: Norman Milley misses a shot to an open net behind Caps goalie Olie Kolzig in the second period of Washington's 2-1 victory over Tampa Bay. It was the third win in four tries against the defending Stanley Cup champions this season.

After 40 games, people are starting to realize that this is the guy they have to go to," Clark said.

Ovechkin said the game-winner helped to balance out a frustrating offensive afternoon for the Capitals, who had only four first-period shots, gave the Lightning seven power plays and were out-shot 35-24.

"We played not good for two periods," Ovechkin said. "The third period, I think we played pretty well."

Jeff Halpern also scored for the Capitals, who snapped a three-game losing streak.

Tampa Bay's Evgeny Artyukhin almost forced overtime. With 0.5 seconds left, his shot glanced off the right post and through the crease behind goalie Olie Kolzig. (AP)

Tiger Starts New Year as a Winner

Woods forces way into playoff, then captures the Buick Invitational

GOLF | A new decade for Tiger Woods looks a lot like the last one — making clutch putts, letting his opponents break down and hoisting the trophy at a golf course that feels as if it's home.

Woods made an 8-foot birdie on the 18th hole Sunday to get into a three-way playoff, then won the Buick Invitational with simple pars as Australian rookie Nathan Green and two-time Masters champion Jose Maria Olazabal made cru-

Tiger Woods won for the fourth time at the Buick Invitational on Sunday afternoon.

Olazabal, playing a splendid bunker shot on the par-3 16th, missed a 4-foot par putt on the second extra hole to hand Woods a victory that was only easy at the end.

For Woods, it was the fourth time in 10 years that he won in his first PGA Tour event of the year, and he became the first four-time winner at the Buick Invitational, played on a Torrey Pines course he played as a kid.

The finish was reminiscent of the American Express Championship last October at Harding Park, where John Daly lost on the second extra hole by missing a 3-foot putt.

Just like then, Woods bowed his head and slowly walked over to shake hands. DOUG FERGUSON (AP)

Fans Side With Steelers in Detroit

Upon arrival at Super Bowl site, Seahawks feel like a road team

SUPER BOWL | The Seahawks were fortunate to arrive in Detroit one day ahead of the Steelers. It gave them an extra few hours to get used to seeing so much black and gold in the Super Bowl city.

Even though the Lions' home jersey is a shade of blue close to what the Seahawks wear, the color of choice this week already appears to have a Pittsburgh hue.

At the airport, in the shopping malls, in Greektown — wherever — the only non-Lions NFL apparel seems to sport the names Bettis and Roethlisberger.

That doesn't bother league Most Valuable Player Shaun Alexander, whose best friend doesn't root for the Seahawks.

He roots for, you guessed it, the Steelers.

"He is definitely coming,"

Seahawks quarterback Matt Hasselbeck arrives with his team in Detroit on Sunday.

A Football Family

→ Unlike many of the NFL's current owners, who made their fortune in other arenas, football is the primary business for the Rooneys, who run the Steelers | Today in Sports

IN The Washington Post

Alexander said. "He'll be there, probably wearing a Pittsburgh jersey, but that's OK."

"He asked me for 10 tickets. I said, 'Why do I want to give you 10 tickets and you'll bring all Steelers fans?'"

Alexander's buddy won't be alone. It takes just a bit longer to drive from Pittsburgh to Detroit as it does to fly from Seattle, and at considerably lower prices, the rising price of fuel notwithstanding.

"They are coming from everywhere," Pittsburgh running back Willie Parker said of Steelers' fans. "They are crawling from under the rocks. They are coming out of the woods." BARRY WILNER (AP)

All-Star Piazza Signs a 1-Year Deal With Padres

BASEBALL | All-Star catcher Mike Piazza agreed Sunday to a $2 million, one-year free agent contract with the San Diego Padres, giving the defending NL West champions a marquee player they think can still contribute.

Piazza, 37, had considered joining an AL team as a designated hitter, but instead will return to the West Coast for the first time since the Los Angeles Dodgers traded him to the Florida Marlins in 1998.

The deal includes a mutual option for 2007 at $8 million.

Even with Piazza's production at the plate declining, his 19 homers with the New York Mets last season were more than any Padres player hit. Piazza holds the major league record for most career home runs by a catcher. (AP)

James Torches the Suns

Star scores 44, adds a spectacular highlight to resume in Cavs' win

NBA | In 6 shining seconds, LeBron James made a block at one end, a dunk at the other and left a lasting memory of greatness.

"It was unbelievable," said Phoenix guard Leandro Barbosa.

James scored 32 of his 44 points in the second half, and brought Cleveland back almost all by himself as the Cavaliers rallied for their fifth straight win, 113-106 over the Phoenix Suns on Sunday.

James added 11 rebounds and seven assists for the Cavs, who trailed by 17 midway through the third quarter when their third-year superstar took control of the game.

And, in a stirring 6-second sequence of the fourth, James made one of the best plays of this NBA season — or any other.

First, he hustled back on defense and blocked a floating layup by the speedy Barbosa, whose shot would have tied it. Then, James quickly retrieved the ball, sped down the floor, eluded Boris Diaw with a head fake and delivered a vicious, right-handed dunk that gave the Cavaliers a 97-93 lead.

"I was like, 'Holy Moley!'" Cavs coach Mike Brown said. "That was one of the most athletic plays I've ever seen."

The Suns were stunned.

"He made a million highlights in a very short time," said reigning league MVP Steve Nash, who led Phoenix with 24 points.

During the Cavs' winning streak, James is averaging 37.2 points, 7.8 rebounds and 7.6 assists, and his 44-point, 11-rebound, 7-assist effort has only been matched by Michael Jordan, Larry Bird and Hakeem Olajuwon since 1991-92.

W.Va. Still Perfect in Big East

COLLEGE HOOPS | Kevin Pittsnogle and Mike Gansey knew West Virginia's 18-point lead over St. John's wasn't going to stay that comfortable. They just didn't know how close the ninth-ranked Mountaineers would come to losing all of it.

West Virginia made just one field goal over the final 11 minutes and almost blew a 13-point lead in the last 3 minutes, but the Mountaineers managed to hang on for a 66-61 victory on Sunday.

"We didn't expect to win by 20 and obviously we struggled down the stretch," said Gansey, who had

West Virginia's Frank Young, left, blocks a shot by St. John's Lamont Hamilton.

15 points, including four free throws in the final 14 seconds. "St. John's is a tough team and we knew they would make a run."

Pittsnogle had 19 points for the Mountaineers (15-4, 6-0), who remained the only unbeaten team in the Big East. JIM O'CONNELL (AP)

N.C. State Holds Off Clemson's Try for an Upset

COLLEGE HOOPS | Ilian Evtimov scored 11 of his season-high 22 points in the two overtime periods to lead No. 15 North Carolina State to a 94-85 victory over Clemson on Sunday.

The Wolfpack (16-4, 5-2 Atlantic Coast Conference) were on the verge of following an embarrassing 83-65 home loss to Seton Hall on Wednesday with another defeat when Cliff Hammonds stepped to the foul line with the Tigers ahead 71-69 with 9.9 seconds to go.

But Hammonds went only 1-of-2, and N.C. State's Cameron Bennerman hit a 3-pointer from the right side to tie things at 72-all with 2.4 seconds left in regulation. Then Evtimov took over. (AP)

Federer Is in 7th Heaven

TENNIS | Always in control on the court, Roger Federer was overcome with emotion while accepting his Australian Open trophy from one of the few people he's still trying to match.

The top-ranked Federer fulfilled overwhelming expectations by beating unlikely finalist Marcos Baghdatis 5-7, 7-5, 6-0, 6-2 in Sunday's final to claim his seventh Grand Slam title and third in succession.

He tearfully embraced tennis great Rod Laver while receiving his trophy. Laver twice swept the Grand Slams, a feat Federer will try to emulate this season — if he Roger Federer won the Australian Open — his third straight major — on Sunday.

EUGENE HOSHIKOTAP

finally can win a French Open.

Federer wept and was stuck for words at the award presentation. "I was so happy," he said. "Then I had to go up on stage and speak. This is really too much for me sometimes. It's just a dream come true every time I win a Grand Slam."

Federer maintained his perfect record in seven major finals. And, at 24, he's halfway toward Pete Sampras' all-time record of 14 Grand Slam titles. Sampras also was 24 when he won his seventh.

Federer's next career goal is a French Open title. A win at Roland Garros would give him four consecutive majors across two seasons, and he'd be halfway to a proper Grand Slam — last accomplished by Laver in 1969. JOHN PYE (AP)

Careers

Steal this Job Sales Associate

JUSTIN DWORKIN, 22

JOB: Sales associate at the Corporate Executive Board, a best-practices research firm in D.C.

SALARY: $40,000-$43,000 average total compensation (base plus bonus)

EDUCATION: Bachelor's in communications from Vanderbilt University

WHAT HE DOES: Dworkin takes the first step in convincing companies to sign up for membership services at CEB by cold-calling senior executives to schedule sales meetings. (As part of the Information Technology group, his targets are chief information officers.) He tries to catch them at "prime hours" — early in the morning, or late in the day when the assistant isn't in the office, "because it's the assistant's job to prevent us from speaking to them." Dworkin has about 250 potential members on his list at any given time, and he estimates he makes 100 to 200 calls a day. Once he has a CIO on the phone, "I have to say something in 30 seconds that makes sense" and persuade the exec to take a meeting with an associate director. In addition to making calls, Dworkin sends e-mails and does research on the companies he's calling so he can "say something relevant" if given the chance. It's like a game — when he locks in a meeting, he sees it as a 22-year-old beating out the CIO of a Fortune 500 company. When he meets and exceeds his sales goals, Dworkin is duly rewarded. "The best part is the money," he said, but a front-row ticket to U2 and a four-day trip to Miami aren't bad, either. He also likes his company's young, play-hard atmosphere, which includes football-throwing over the cubes and happy hours on the rooftop.

WOULD YOU WANT HIS JOB? "I get rejected on a daily basis," Dworkin said of the executives he calls. "They hang up on me." It's also frustrating when a CIO postpones or cancels a meeting at the last minute.

HOW YOU CAN GET HIS JOB:

Dworkin's dad worked in sales out of the home, so Dworkin grew up listening to him on the phone. "It's all about attitude," he said. "You need to be a people person, you need to be able to hold a conversation, you need to be able to pick up the phone and talk to someone who's a lot more important than you are." Although he feels "you're cut out for sales or you're not," he says that any job dealing with people would be good preparation.

I provided a reference for a former co-worker who did not get the job she was applying for. Her "thank you" note to me for providing the reference was a nasty (and vulgar) rant about the company. She's extremely bitter she wasn't hired. How does she expect to get a new job if that's her attitude? I was a little shocked, and we're not good friends so I'm surprised she sent me a note like that. I'm certainly not inclined to provide another reference.

Uh, yeah. No more references for her. You can just drop it with this person. Or if you are inclined to help, tell her that you understand it's tough, but there's a lot of competition out there and a letter like that will get her nowhere. Fast.

What is the best way to avoid putting your current employer down as a reference. I know many places have you fill out a reference form when you go in for an interview and give you an option on wheth- er or not they can contact your current/previous employers, but do you need to address your reasons? Or if they ask for references along with a resume and cover letter, will it look odd if you leave your current boss off, or will most people assume it's because you don't want them to know you are looking for a new job?

I think it's totally safe to ask that they not contact your current employer. Just make sure to give them plenty of other good references. I know lots of employers will assume that you just don't want your current employer to know you're looking. That's common and accepted.

The keeper of Oscar trivia and secrets has a long night ahead

LITTLE-KNOWN FACTS | Weathered plastic crates crammed with papers, books and binders cover the floor. Cardboard boxes compete for space atop four large filing cabinets lining one of the walls. Piles of manila envelopes and official-looking brown folders fill every visible bit of desk space.

This is ground zero for the Oscars' most important and detailed research: finding film factoids for the worldwide media to use in the endless stream of stories leading up to the March 5 Academy Awards show.

At 9 p.m. Monday, academy historian Patrick E. Stockstill and his team will be locked inside the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences' headquarters in Beverly Hills and presented with the names of this year's Oscar nominees.

By 5:38 a.m. Tuesday, they will have transformed Stockstill's mess of papers, plus 1,860 file drawers, into a tidy collection of facts and figures for film fans to chew on.

He was named Academy Historian in 1983. After decades of immersion in movie stats, his mind works like an infinite database.

RETRIEVABLE FACTS: Patrick Stockstill amid the manila folders that harbor Oscar secrets, minutiae and forgotten factoids.

"Nobody even dares play Trivial Pursuit with me now," he said.

Oh, but we'll try.

So, Patrick, how many films are eligible for the Oscars this year?

"Three hundred eleven," he said instantly. "It's the most in a long time. I had to put it in my statistics book."

Stockstill and fellow librarians Lucia Schultz and Libby Wertin start with the Academy's list of eligible entries, then the brainstorming begins. But it's not an entirely blind quest: "We also have ears. We have eyes. We read newspapers. We hear people talking," Stockstill said.

Once the nominations are announced, Schultz collects biographies and credits for each of the nominees, plus the spelling of any name a winner is likely to mention during an acceptance speech.

The Academy has a searchable database online; the Margaret Herrick Library is also open to regular folks. Reference librarians will research questions that can't be found in the library or online, such as a recent inquiry about a snake that escaped during the 1993 Oscar show.

"He wasn't found for six months," said Wertin of the guest star that slithered off during rehearsals. "The understudy snake actually had to go into the production."

Cash's Hard Reckoning

Roseanne Cash comes to terms with three family deaths

MUSIC | Coming to terms with the death of a parent is a monumental task for anyone. When that parent is a cultural titan on the level of a Johnny Cash, the layers of grief and loss grow even more complex. And if that weren't plenty to keep singer-songwriter as Rosanne Cash up to her tear ducts in source material, fold in the deaths of her mother (Vivian Liberto Distin) and her country-legend stepmother, June Carter Cash.

The singer-songwriter manages pain.

On "Black Cadillac" (Capitol), Cash grips tightly to the aspects of loss she has been able to process, even if the size of that task escapes her grasp at times.

The tone is expectedly somber, with lots of minor-key musical settings for dark words of hurt, anger, despondency and fleeting hopelessness. Cash repeatedly draws on touchstone images: kings and queens, of smoke and fire, of graves and emotional waves.

She seeks answers to largely answerless questions about the essence of the bond of love between two human beings and what it is that survives the physical or emotional absence of the loved one.

Most often, she invokes a tangible sense of beloved places past in "House on the Lake," "World Without Sound" and "God Is in the Roses." Under her outer skepticism, it's clear some kind of faith resides; undoubtedly this won't be her last word on the void left by parental giants. RANDY LEWIS

A new chick-lit novel proves that love is spoken everywhere

GIRL READERS | International atrocities were all in a day's work for Jessica Jiji, a news writer at the United Nations. Foreign policy, election results and body counts were, and still are, her bread and butter.

When she came home, Jiji needed to decompress. She turned to reading chick lit, a light, easily absorbed genre of books.

But the 40-year-old with a master's degree in international relations was quickly frustrated by chick lit. She found it simple and at times poorly written. Instead of complaining about it, a friend suggested, she should write her own.

Jiji did just that. Her book, "Diamonds Take Forever," follows the basic formula for the genre: heartbreak, the struggle to get over it and the quest for a new man.

But Jiji's book has a twist. Between the tales of woe and encouragement from the requisite gay friend are Arabic phrases and references to arranged marriages within an Arab and Jewish family.

"I hope to convey in the novel some of the admirable qualities in Arabic culture like generosity, warmth, hospitality and loyalty," the Jiji said.

"Diamonds Take Forever" is the story of Michelle Benamou, a twentysomething who lives in Queens with her boyfriend Joe. When he breaks up with her, Michelle is not only heartbroken, but without an apartment. As she tries to find a place to live, she samples some new suitors and gets on with life.

Jiji's father may be Iraqi, but in "Diamonds Take Forever" she decided to make Michelle Benamou Moroccan instead. "I couldn't make her Iraqi without addressing all the other issues connected with Iraq."

Jiji signed with Avon Trade, which was looking for more ethnic stories in its line of novels geared at women. This amused Jiji — half Iraqi and a practicing Buddhist.

"Exotic for me was the blue-eyed blond girl — the Protestant whose parents didn't have funny names," she said. PAULINE M. MILLARD (AP)

CROSSOVER ACTS | Two comedy cable channels keep trying to make us laugh on new CD releases.

"TBS Tunes: Fun Tracks, Wisecracks" (Rhino) collects "power pop to tickle the funny bone." Its 16 tracks, spanning the last three decades, include Barenaked Ladies' "One Week," Devo's "Whip It," They Might Be Giants' "Birdhouse in Your Soul," other treats from Squirrel Nut Zippers, Bowling for Soup, Wall of Voodoo, and more. It was released this month.

"Jim Gaffigan: Beyond the Pale" (Comedy Central Records) The whitest white guy around tackles American obesity, holiday traditions and other everyman topics.

"Mike Birbiglia: Two Drink Mike" is a CD/DVD combo from the comic whose college tour starts Feb. 9 at New York University. Both releases hit shelves Feb. 7, following previous discs from Dane Cook, Denis Leary, Dave Attell, D.L. Hughley, Mitch Hedberg and Lewis Black. (NEWSDAY)

Feeling Really Down?

Do you have:

- Feelings of sadness? • Feelings of hopelessness, guilt, or worthlessness?
- Thoughts of death or suicide? • Loss of interest or pleasure in activities you once enjoyed?

Or do you have:

- Decreased need for sleep? • Racing thoughts? • Extreme irritability?
- Rapid speech? • Excessively "high," overly good mood?

If so you may have Major Depression, Bipolar Depression, or Acute Mania. NIMH is seeking people over the age of 18, with bipolar illness or depression to participate in various clinical trials and brain imaging studies. Participants must be free of other serious medical conditions.

Compensation is provided for participation in neuropsychological exams and brain imaging. Physical evaluation & research medications provided free of charge.

Transportation reimbursement provided.

'NOT FOR LADIES'? Bad news, football widows: The NFL Network will launch a "run up to the playoffs" package this fall, an eight-game set of prime-time games airing from Thanksgiving to the end of the regular season. Wait, there's an NFL Network?

Men Against a Ticking Clock

A&E's 'Flight 93' exploits patriotism; '24' creates drama

ACTION PACKED | "Flight 93" (9 p.m., A&E) is the second cable movie to depict the horrible events of Sept. 11 in a moment-by-moment fashion. The Discovery Channel aired a similar film some months ago about the very same subject. This new version is not the better of the two.

Next to the choice to air "Flight 93" at all, the most curious decision by A&E is to broadcast it opposite "24" (9 p.m., Fox).

Like "Flight 93," this superior

LET'S ROLL: Fictionalized passengers on "Flight 93" fight back with a drinks cart.

weekly drama offers viewers the cathartic experience of watching Americans take decisive actions to confront terrorists. Both take place accompanied by a ticking clock.

But "24" operates in the realm of fiction and melodrama, freeing the viewer to watch it without feeling that one's patriotism and emotions are being exploited. KEVIN MCDONOUGH

ON TV TONIGHT

QUIT LOOKING AT US LIKE THAT

On tonight's RELATED (10 p.m., WB) — what are you snickering at? It's an underrated chick-TV soap that's sweet, sad, funny and — even its fans know this — silly. Anyway, tonight, Rose contemplates losing her virginity to hunky Alex, while Ginnie discovers British Bob's been less than honest about the sexy singer he's producing. Shenanigans! And good hair!

THINGS COULD GET IGLOO

Todd Bridges was voted off the glacier on SKATING WITH CELEBRITIES (8p.m., Fox), which is too bad. Now can we please ice self-satisfied ringer Jillian Barberie?

LOOKING FOR LOVE

For proof that the trad sitcom is still a going concern, tune in to HOW I MET

BIG DECISIONS: Rose, don't sleep with hot Alex. He'll just break your heart.

YOUR MOTHER for a rerun of one of its most charming episodes.

THOSE BIG LUGS

ANIMAL HOUSE (8 p.m., AMC) The Caesar of all toga-party flicks trashes your living room tonight, but lovably. ARION BERGER (EXPRESS)

Candidates should have at minimum a baccalaureate degree in an engineering or science discipline, a 15-year record of accomplishment in an engineering/technical environment, including at least 5 years of experience successfully managing a 50 + person technical operation. Greater experience levels and advanced degrees in relevant technical fields are a plus.

Compensation is highly competitive, commensurate with experience and qualifications. GST also offers vacation, sick, and holiday leave; major medical, dental, life, long-term and short-term disability insurance; 401K retirement plan; profit-sharing; tuition assistance; and opportunities for employee career growth and development. GST is an equal opportunity employer.

For certain positions requiring access to government facilities, permanent residency or citizenship may be required. Qualified candidates, please send your resume and cover letter via email to careers@gst.com. SUBJECT LINE MUST READ: Executive-Level Technical Program Manager

Detroit officials hope Super Bowl will show off city improvements

NFL players said it all season: We want to go to Detroit.

While the Motor City was destination No. 1 for pro football players, it's likely not among the top tourism destinations for most Americans.

But city officials and members of the Super Bowl host committee want out-of-towners to know that a new and improving Detroit awaits them.

The 40th edition of the Super Bowl hits Detroit's Ford Field on Sunday, and along with it will come tens of thousands of people, from players and fans to celebrities.

What will they find? Everything from a winter carnival and casinos to world-renowned works of art and history, including a tour of a Ford factory and a museum devoted to Motown.

Those who still think of Detroit as a blighted, dangerous industrial city in decline will be especially surprised by the new look of downtown.

Abandoned buildings are being converted into apartments and office space along Woodward Avenue, Detroit's main thoroughfare.

The skyscrapers of the Renaissance Center — the most recognizable feature of the city skyline — have been overhauled along the redeveloped waterfront of the Detroit River. The largest tower has been decorated with a 24,000-plus-be held there, with a 200-foot-long snow slide, sled dogs and ice skating. Heated tents will showcase musical entertainment and some of the city's best cuisine.

The park "has been an economic catalyst for the development of downtown Detroit, and we probably could say that many of the new buildings and the new things that are taking place in Detroit are there because of the fact that the park exists," said Edsel Ford II, chairman of the Detroit 300 Conservancy Board, a group involved in revitalizing the city's downtown.

Done with football hype? Another kind of game can be found at four area casinos. In all, the MGM Grand Detroit, MotorCity and Greektown casinos and Casino Windsor offer gamblers more than 10,000 slots and hundreds of tables.

Nighttime recreational opportunities will abound at nightclubs throughout the region. A-listers from the worlds of entertainment and athletics also will converge on Detroit to see and be seen at a multitude of parties.

"It is about the people. And that is what's going to define what their experience is," said Susan Sherer, executive director of Detroit's Super Bowl host committee.

The Police

STEWART COPELAND, drummer and founder of The Police was online Friday to talk about his movie (which premiered at the Sundance Film Festival last week), "Everyone Stares: The Police Inside Out." | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

What do you hope people take away after viewing the film? Was there a specific goal you wanted to achieve, beyond giving a glimpse of the band's development and history?

I just want to share a little bit of the thrill of what it's like to ride a rocket ship. I found this film in a shoebox that I shot while I was on that rocket ship and thought you folks might like to see it.

Some say the band's break up was because Sting was a selfish glory hound; others say all of you drifted apart musically and there are other more far-fetched rumors. What is/was the real story?

Sting was not a selfish glory hound and we were still empathetic musically. The problem was very simple: Sting arranged his songs completely in his mind which didn't leave room for Andy and me. Both his position and ours were logical but incompatible. He put up with us meddling with his songs for a surprisingly long time.

How long did it take you to put the film together (that is, after you found it)? What did you think of the whole process of getting this far? And can you see yourself doing more in this medium?

It took, after I digitized the material, about a year and a half for me to learn the software and to cut the movie. Sundance was like a nuclear hit on my little toy project. It exploded it out into the world in a way that has blown my mind. Yes, I'll be doing more of this.

Will there be a soundtrack that goes along with the film, hopefully with a lot of live tracks?

I'm working on that. The soundtracks are strange lobotomies of Police music that were unblessed by my comrades before the movie. Andy likes the stuff now that he's seen it in the film. I'm still working on Sting.

Very impressed by your soundtrack work, but love your drumming too. Any plans for another Oysterhead album or other musical side projects?

Yes, I've rediscovered drumming. I love it. Oysterhead may be coming back around soon. Our plan was always to come down from the mountain together at 5-year intervals.

Did you travel a lot as a kid, or do you have memories of the D.C. area? Where did you actually live? What did you like/dislike most about it?

I was born in Alexandria (Va., not Egypt). I lived there for two months before traveling to Cairo, Egypt. I didn't get back to America till I was 18 after living in Lebanon and England. People are disappointed when they hear my American accent because they regard "The Police" as an English band but I've clung to my American-ness all the way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) What begins with fireworks may not end in a bang at all—but with the proverbial whimper. Don't let the energy die out too soon.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You can especially enjoy any sign given to you that you are one-of-a-kind—and you may get more than your share before the day is out.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may have to work with someone more closely than usual before you will get the results you are after. A few compromises may be necessary.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't lose track of your own financial standing. You cannot afford to increase spending indiscriminately.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) What you've been searching for may prove especially elusive—after you have made such progress over the past days and weeks.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't be too impersonal. A friendly approach can get you more in the long run than an overly serious, businesslike strategy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't let your own inhibitions put a stranglehold on your desires. You can break through a few stubborn obstacles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your concern for your own financial security will be on the rise—and, perhaps, not without reason. Avoid unnecessary risks.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Contract negotiations and other financial concerns are highlighted. You may have to make a sacrifice now to reap rewards later.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Focus on the finer points of behavior and you'll impress all those who have it in their power to do you an important favor or two.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Talk is cheap—but it can serve you well as you attempt to get to the bottom of a particularly stubborn problem. Communication is key.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is a good day to refine your own appearance, surroundings and lifestyle. Make changes permanently if you are so inclined.

College coaches use cell messages to get in touch with recruits

When John Peterson wants to make sure a prized recruit is thinking about playing football for Ohio State, he reaches for his phone — and types.

Buoyed by an NCAA rule change, more football and basketball coaches are text messaging recruits. Coaches still send letters and make phone calls, but, some say, the short messages transmitted from a cell phone or handheld device are more effective than traditional recruiting tools in communicating with prized prospects.

"It's an instant letter or note to a recruit," said Peterson, the recruiting coordinator for the Buckeyes. "As prevalent as cell phones and text messages are, it's a tool that is definitely being used across the country."

An NCAA subcommittee on recruiting picked up on the trend, voting in 2004 to change the designation of text messages to general correspondence. The rules change treats text messages like letters instead of phone calls — which are limited based on the recruit's age, sport and time of year.

During approved recruiting periods, the NCAA allows coaches as much general correspondence as they want.

"The rationale was in order to take advantage of technology and provide greater flexibility for institutions to contact prospective student athletes," said Crissy Schluep, an NCAA spokeswoman. "On the flip side of things, for the prospects' well-being, they can choose to respond or not."

Phone calls remain more regulated because prospects have little choice about responding, she said.

short messages, recipients can choose to respond at a more convenient time — or ignore the message.

Text messaging, though more widespread abroad, is growing in the United States.

More than 32 billion text messages were sent in the United States during the first half of 2005, up from 24.7 billion during the last half of 2004, said Joe Farren, a spokesman for CTIA-The Wireless Association, a cell phone trade group. In June alone, 7.3 billion messages were sent, an increase from 2.9 billion in June 2004.

It's taken some adjustment for coaches, who haven't grown up with the technology like the teenagers they're recruiting. Some have adapted quickly, while others are still learning.

"I'm an older guy and obviously a little technologically challenged like most of us at this age," said Chuck Heater, the defensive backs coach and recruiting coordinator at Florida. "But obviously it's not so far out there that you can't figure it out. Since we've got it, it's become a great means of communication." JAY COHEN (AP)

Fashion Week goes glam in the City of Light

CHRISTIAN LACROIX went back to his roots in the Provence city of Arles and sent out a breathtaking spring-summer couture collection Tuesday that drew applause throughout and a standing ovation after the show.

His signature toreador jacket was the subject for study, and it showed up in many new and elegant forms.

The bustle dresses that appeared in Lacroix's first couture show two decades ago were back. This time around they were cut from luxurious silks, brocades and mouseline dotted with pale sequins. Ball gowns had fitted bodices with soft draping over the front and great big poufs of soft chiffon. Though voluminous, these dresses were delicate and soft as clouds. These are dresses that make a woman dream.

the Chanel woman back to a time when life was simple and clothes were sweet. Borrowing heavily from the early 1960s, daywear was crisp and clean, stripped of superfluous details. Lagerfeld even abandoned the house's signature tweeds and checks for this collection. Instead, he sent out snappy little suits with boxy jackets that grazed the hips, worn over simple flared miniskirts and a Chanel version of the original Courreges "go-go" boot.

Riccardo Tisci, creative director for Givenchy, offered a very interesting evening Tuesday and a beautiful collection. The show was presented as an installation scattered throughout Paris' Bourdelle Museum. In the first room, the visitor encountered black and white garments that exuded the Givenchy signature but with Tisci's own twist. A classic fitted jacket had bell sleeves that released a bevy of white lace from the blouse underneath. A group of cream white garments featured classic slim silhouettes. The strong point of the collection, however, was the eveningwear. A flesh-toned gown in tulle had bits of lace falling away like ivy; another was spiked with ostrich feathers.

The final group was comprised of sensual white charmeuse gowns, each draped like a different type of lily, the way Balenciaga might have done. It was a perfect ending to a perfect haute couture day.

Gain Without Pain

Here at product-testing headquarters, we shudder whenever a lip-plumper comes along, because most of them rely on flesh-searing chemicals. LORAC'S LOTSA LIP lipstick and gloss ($19 each, Sephora) is different—instead of irritating the skin for instant fattening, it supposedly stimulates collagen production. The catch? You have to use it for 29 days to see results. Waiting aside, both the stick and the gloss are super-moisturizing, and the latter gives good shine with minimal stickiness. Add in the gloss' handy brush applicator, and these are products we can get lippy with.

Heartburn Isn't Always Forgiving

Heartburn is very painful and can impact your daily life. Left untreated, heartburn can lead to Erosive Esophagitis, a medical condition which causes burning ulcers that wear away the esophagus.

We are conducting a research study on the safety and effectiveness of an investigational medication for heartburn. To qualify, you must have experienced heartburn symptoms for at least 6 months.

All study related care is provided at no charge including physical examinations, laboratory services and study medication. Financial compensation for time and travel may be available.
